HUMAN RIGHTS PROTECTION OF CHILDREN BASED ON INTERNATIONAL LAW ASPECTS AND IMPLEMENTATION IN INDONESIA

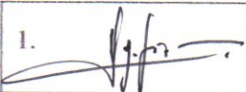

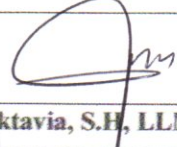

Agung Tri Putra, Law Faculty Of Andalas University, PK VII (Internasional Law), 99 Page. Year: 2016

ABSTRACT

The government is considered less able to realize the rules on the protection of children. Therefore, people participate to be so important to get involved, they are those who have a serious concern for the future of children, both religious organizations, foundations or non - government. In fact, all that has been done until now has not been maximized, meaning that generally sectoral program and has not touched the substance of basic protection of children. Child rights are set by the world body or the League of Nations in 1924 this declaration known as the Declaration of Geneva. But the development of the times at the moment does not give a strong sense of the regulation of children's rights so that the lack of rules for violators of the rights of the child. This study aims to (1) to determine the arrangement of children's rights in international law (2) to assess agencies or parties responsible for the protection of children's rights, and (3) to determine the harmonization of legal norms Indonesia on protection rights the rights of children with contemporary international law. This research was conducted in the form of literature studies at the Faculty of Law Andalas University Library, Library of the Faculty of Social and Political Sciences and Andalas University Central Library. The results of this study will refer cases of violence against children that occurred in Indonesia country both in terms of life as well as in other fields. With reference to the real life of children there are several factors that can affect the regulation in demanding the rights of the child for violating, among others, the reaction given by the victim, criticism and demands from various parties for their government.
