ABSTRACT

This study analyzes the psychological resonance between the main character, Hazel Grace Lancaster, and the fictional novel An Imperial Affliction in John Green's The Fault in Our Stars. This research applies psychoanalytic criticism by using Sigmund Freud's theory of the id, ego, and superego, Schultz and Schultz's defense mechanism, and Norman Holland's identity theme theory. Hazel's resonance with An Imperial Affliction reveals her unconscious psychological processes relating to illness, death, and social relationships. Hazel strongly identifies with the novel's protagonist, Anna, reflecting her fears, guilt, and desire for meaning in her short life. The novel serves as a psychological mirror and emotional sanctuary for Hazel, shaping her attitudes, behaviors, and use of defense mechanisms such as suppression, repression, intellectualization, and rationalization. Through this analysis, this study highlights how literature not only reflects but also influences the psyche and behavioral patterns of readers. It emphasizes the critical role of literature in helping individuals overcome trauma, isolation, and the search for meaning under life's limitations.

ABSTRAK

Studi ini menganalisis resonansi psikologis antara karakter utama, Hazel Grace Lancaster, dan novel fiksi An Imperial Affliction dalam The Fault in Our Stars karya John Green. Penelitian ini menggunakan kritik psikoanalisis dengan menggunakan teori Sigmund Freud tentang id, ego, dan superego, mekanisme pertahanan dari Schultz dan Schultz, dan teori tema identitas dari Norman Holland. Resonansi Hazel dengan An Imperial Affliction mengungkapkan proses psikologis bawah sadarnya yang berkaitan dengan penyakit, kematian, dan hubungan sosial. Hazel sangat mengidentifikasi diri dengan tokoh utama novel ini, Anna, yang merefleksikan ketakutan, rasa bersalah, dan keinginannya untuk mendapatkan makna dalam kehidupan yang singkat. Novel ini berfungsi sebagai cermin psikologis dan tempat perlindungan emosional bagi Hazel, membentuk sikap, perilaku, dan penggunaan mekanisme pertahanan seperti tekanan, represi, intelektualisasi, dan rasionalisasi. Melalui analisis ini, penelitian ini menyoroti bagaimana sastra tidak hanya merefleksikan, tetapi juga memengaruhi jiwa dan pola perilaku pembaca. Penelitian ini menekankan peran penting sastra dalam membantu individu mengatasi trauma, isolasi, dan pencarian makna di bawah keterbatasan hidup.
