

CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

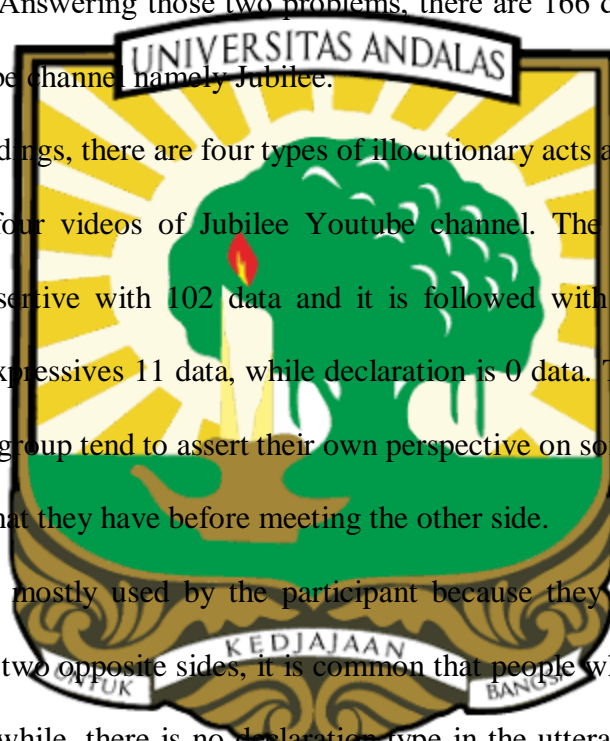

4.1 Conclusion

This chapter delivers the conclusion of the research. This research has two research problems, (1) identifying the types of illocutionary acts by using a theory that is proposed by Searle's (1969) and (2) identifying the illocutionary function of the illocutionary act by using Leech's (1989) theory. Answering those two problems, there are 166 data from four videos that are taken from a Youtube channel, namely Jubilee.

Based on the findings, there are four types of illocutionary acts are found in the utterances of the participants in four videos of Jubilee Youtube channel. The most dominant types of illocutionary acts is assertive with 102 data and it is followed with directives with 35 data, commissives 18 data, expressives 11 data, while declaration is 0 data. This finding indicates that the participants of each group tend to assert their own perspective on something. It is the result of the shared-knowledge that they have before meeting the other side.

The assertive is mostly used by the participant because they tend to assert what they believe. Since there are two opposite sides, it is common that people who face the opposite view of him to affirm. Meanwhile, there is no declaration type in the utterance. Considering that the video is a discussion on various issues, none of the participants have a power to instruct others or to change the situation.

Furthermore, there are three functions of the illocutionary acts are found of the four functions. The most dominant function is collaborative with 102 data. For this reason, the purpose of collaborative is when the speaker aims something that is tolerable with society. For example, when someone asserts or announces or insists something. Besides, competitive is found with 35 data and convivial with 29 data. Meanwhile, there is no data that show conflictive. Since the goal of this function would affect disharmony in society, such as accusing, cursing, etc, the participants of the videos do not use this function to keep peacefulness.

4.2 Suggestion and Limitation

In this chapter, the researcher found that the conflict of a particular issues in society is as the result of misunderstanding. Joining the discussions or talks that are provided by organizations or a group of people who concern about the problem could resolve this problem. This research aims to find and analyze the illocutionary acts and the function of the use of illocutionary acts of a dialog in a certain topic that are held by a Youtube channel namely Jubilee. By finishing this research, the researcher hopes that the reader could understand the interlocutors by using illocutionary acts.

Furthermore, Youtube channel is one of the platforms that contribute to identify the interlocutors's intention. Thus, the researcher suggest that direct discussion or interview might be more details in finding and analyzing the speaker's intention. For this reason, the future research could use another approach and theory to do the analysis. Thus, the limitation of this research is the topic is too general. For further research, it could be better to specify the object of the research.
